A limitation of liability clause serves to limit the amount and types of compensation one party can recover from the other party. It caps the liability incurred by one party, and reduces the risk of claim by the other party. For example, a website user suffers loss because they relied on information provided on that website.

What is a limitation of liability clause?

Raise the limit of the liability. This is the less expensive option; however, the amounts are still limited for both individual pieces and overall losses. For example, limit to a claim for the loss of an individual piece could be $2,000, with the overall limit at $5,000. Purchase a floater policy and "schedule" your individual valuables.
