The world lit up like it was on fire, and there they were—four great beasts of men astride their terrible steeds. The monstrous mounts reared back, pawing the air as their masters stared out at the world with foreign, fearsome eyes. Pestilence, his crown perched upon his brow. War, with his steel blade held high. Famine, a scythe and scales at hand.

See Article History. Four horsemen of the apocalypse, in Christianity, the four horsemen who, according to the book of Revelation (6:1-8), appear with the opening of the first four of the seven seals that bring forth the cataclysm of the apocalypse. The first horseman, a conqueror with a bow and crown, rides a white horse, which scholars sometimes interpret to symbolize Christ or the Antichrist; the second horseman is given a great sword and rides a red horse, symbolizing war and bloodshed ...

So Pestilence is a love story where two unlikely people end up falling in love, granted one is apart of the apocalypse and the other a regular human girl. There wasn't much to this story, they went to town Pestilence spread his plague. Sara begged him to stop, they got attacked. Basically that was about it.
